Should a student be scheduled for three back-to-back final exams on a single day, the middle exam may be rescheduled in coordination with the instructor. If the middle final exam cannot be rescheduled due to the nature of the final (such as group projects or performances), the student should reach out to the first or third final instructor. The student is responsible for contacting the instructor at least one month in advance to make accommodations.

Comprehensive final exams may not be given (or due) during the last week of class or during the scheduled reading period. Other examinations and tests may be given at any time during the course at the discretion of the instructor.

Asynchronous courses may choose a due date/time however, they cannot schedule a mandatory day/time to meet (in person or virtually).
